Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine, Tory.

The present critical state of European affairs will render these publications unusually interesting during the year 1854. They will occupy a middle ground between the hastify written news items, crade speculations, and the flying inmurs of the daily Journals and the pondenous Tome of the fatnie instorian, written after the living interest and excitament of the great political events of the time shill bave passed away. It is to these Periodicals that renders must look for the only really intelligible and reinable history of cutrent events, and as such, in addition to their well-established literary, scientific, and theological character, we argethen upon the consideration of the reading public.

Arrancements are in progress for the receipt of early sherts from the British publishers, by which we shall be able to place all our Reprints in the hambs of subscribers about as soon as they can be formshed with the loreign copies. Although this will involve a very large outlay on our part, we shall continue to Drinish the Periodicals at the same low rates as heretofore, viz.
